

Place yourself at the cutting edge of hairdressing trade

ACHIEVE a hairdressing qualification in under a year at the Brisbane School of Hairdressing.

The school runs courses in Brisbane and on the Gold Coast, offering Certificates II and III in Hairdressing and a Diploma of Hairdressing Salon Management.

Courses begin every eight weeks, with the next starting on January 25.

Students learn in state-of-the-art surrounds, with the school nearing completion of a million dollar expansion at its CBD premises.

The revamp will include a new Advanced Salon, where senior students can work on members of the public in a real-life hairdressing environment.

Featuring 365sq m of space, the expansion will include 27 work stations, four basins, a lecture room and a Webster & Wood salon.

Brisbane School of Hairdressing director Lina Wood said clients who visited the new salon would receive hair appointments at discounted prices.

"The new floorplan will provide greater efficiency in how we serve clients by giving them the best school salon in Brisbane," Ms Wood said.

"The upper ground level salon has our new students, who may take a little longer to get their clients looking great, or you can pay a little extra and have your hair done by the more advanced students in the newer salon, with these prices still being much cheaper than a regular salon."

The students selected to work in the advanced salon have shown outstanding performance in their course with hundreds of hours of experience under their belts.

By working in a live salon they will know what to expect when they enter the workforce.

The Brisbane School of Hairdressing certificates allow students to fast track their hairdressing qualification.

Within two weeks of the course students start cutting hair on mannequins, within six weeks they are learning how to colour, and after 10 weeks commence work on the school's salon floor and start building their clientele.
